

About the Croucher Professorship in Medical Science

The Croucher Foundation was established by the late Noel Croucher in 1979. After a long, successful career in Hong Kong, Mr Croucher took the momentous decision to give away his entire life's fortune to support science, technology and medicine. By keeping a sharp focus on the promotion of scientific excellence, he expected that Hong Kong would gradually gain recognition as a world-class centre for education and research, to the benefit of the whole community. The Foundation is delighted that through this endowment, Mr Croucher's inestimable contribution to Hong Kong science can be recognised.
